Crossing for animals affected

The clearance of forested sites for roadworks has affected a crossing along the Clementi Nature Corridor used by tree-dwelling animals to get from Bukit Timah Nature Reserve to the Southern Ridges.

Creatures such as flying squirrels and colugos can travel between Bukit Batok Nature Park and Toh Tuck forest by traversing trees along the fringes.

The clearance of trees along Clementi Nature Corridor could hamper the movement of animals between biodiversity areas.

Source: NPARKS
PHOTOS: BRICE LI, GOOGLE MAPS, NATIONAL PARKS BOARD, STRAITS TIMES GRAPHICS