

FACTS&FIGURES

Hello, hello (then and now)

In September 1965, the Singapore Telephone Board appealed to the public not to hog public telephones, as others may need to make urgent calls.

In 1965

There were only about

640 public telephone booths.

There were only about

90,000 telephones connected to the Singapore Telephone Board

In June 2015*

There were 2 million fixed line subscriptions

There were

8.1 million mobile phone line subscriptions

* Infocomm Development Authority