Turning of the tide

Spurs v City

Tottenham did the double over Manchester City last season, after losing their previous four meetings in the league. Will Pep Guardiola's arrival herald another shift in Spurs' fortunes?

The hit-men

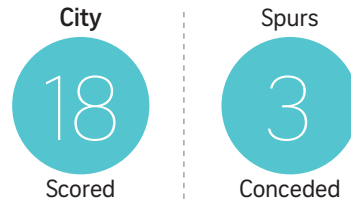

South Korean forward Son Heung Min is Spurs' man to watch with four goals in his last three Premier League games. Along with Chelsea's Diego Costa, the Argentinian Aguero is the league's joint-top scorer, scoring five in four.

The Guardiola difference

City's perfect start to this Premier League season under Pep Guardiola is their best ever. Five more wins on the trot will equal the European record for the best top-flight start - Tottenham's 11 wins in the 1960-61 season.

Attack v defence

The meeting between the last two unbeaten sides in England's top flight is also a clash between the top scorers City and Spurs, who boast the league's meanest defence. Something has got to give.
