Berlin truck attack

On Monday, Amri allegedly drove a truck into a crowded Berlin Christmas market, killing 12. It was one of the largest terrorist attacks in Germany in more than 30 years.

- 1 Around 8pm, a truck with Polish number plates approaches the market from Kant Street or Hardenberg Street.
- 2 It abruptly turns off the road and drives between two rows of Christmas market huts.
- 3 It then smashes through a hut as it veers on to the main Budapester Street.
- 4 General direction of suspect's escape.
