

Key findings

People own fewer cards now

Average card ownership dropped from five cards in 2015 to four last year.

More researching online

Consumers increasingly conduct online research before they apply for a card.

High interest in travel

One-third (32%) of respondents spent the most using their credit cards on travel expenditure, followed by dining (18%).