

A GATHERING OF NAVAL FRIENDS

About 50 vessels from 21 countries, including Singapore, are gathered here for the inaugural International Maritime Review to mark the Republic of Singapore Navy's 50th anniversary. President Tony Tan Keng Yam will review the ships on land at Changi Naval Base and also at sea today.

SINGAPORE Republic of Singapore Navy

Name of ship: RSS Formidable
Type: Frigate

Length: 114m
Displacement: 3,200 tonnes
Speed: In excess of 25 knots
Range: >3,500 nautical miles

- Equipped with stealth technology to complement an advanced sensor and weapons systems, and organic naval helicopters.
- It is capable of dealing with naval threats from the air, surface and underwater.
- There are five other frigates in the Formidable-class, namely RSS Intrepid, RSS Steadfast, RSS Tenacious, RSS Stalwart and RSS Supreme.

JAPAN Japan Maritime Self Defence Force

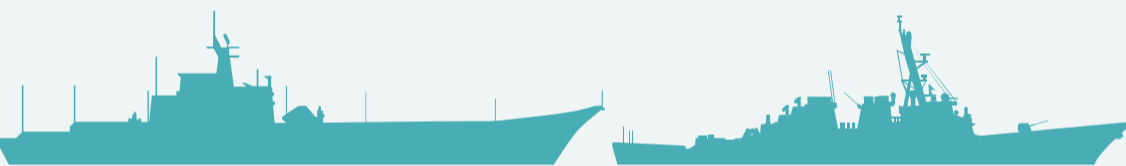

Type: Izumo-class
Ship name: JS Izumo
Length: 248m
Displacement: 19,813 tonnes

- Largest Japanese military ship built since World War II.
- Capable of carrying up to 14 helicopters.
- Equipped with a OQQ-22 bow-mounted sonar to track submarines, as well as two Raytheon

RIM-116 Rolling Airframe Missile SeaRAM launchers and two Phalanx close-in weapon systems to defend against aerial threats.

- This will be the longest and largest warship on display at Imdex Asia 2017.
- Japan is planning to deploy the JS Izumo on a three-month tour to the South China Sea this month.

THAILAND Royal Thai Navy

Type: Chakri Narubet-class
Ship name: HTMS Chakri Narubet
Length: 182.6m
Displacement: 11,669 tonnes

- The only aircraft carrier in operation in a South-east Asian navy, it is the flagship of the Royal Thai Navy.
- Previously deployed for disaster relief efforts.
- The smallest serving aircraft carrier in the world.
- Participated in anti-submarine warfare exercises involving detecting and tracking submarines, as part of Exercise Guardian Sea, with the US Navy in 2016.

UNITED STATES United States Navy

Type: Arleigh Burke-class
Ship name: USS Sterett
Length: 153.8m
Displacement: 8,364 tonnes

- The Arleigh Burke-class destroyers are designed for anti-aircraft and anti-submarine warfare, with a reduced radar cross section.
- Currently part of the Sterett-Dewey Surface Action Group, which has been assigned to operate with regional navies in the Western Pacific to conduct routine patrols, maritime security operations and theatre security cooperation activities to enhance regional security and stability.
- Arleigh Burke-class destroyers are equipped with the Aegis combat system, which integrates the ship's sensors and weapons systems to engage anti-ship missile threats.

MYANMAR Myanmar Navy

Type: Khan Sit Thar-class
Ship name: UMS King Sin Phyu Shin
Length: 106m
Displacement: 3,000 tonnes

- The second stealth frigate of the Myanmar Navy, it uses the same hull and propulsion as the preceding UMS Kyansitthar, which was also locally built at Myanmar's Thilawa Naval Dockyards.
- Little is known about Myanmar's two Khan Sit Thar-class frigates, which were designed with technological assistance from China.
- As Myanmar modernises its fleet, more ships in this class, which incorporates both anti-ship and surface-to-air missiles, are expected to be developed.

CHINA People's Liberation Army Navy

Type: Jiang Kai II-class
Ship name: PLAN Huang Shan
Length: 134.1m
Displacement: 4,053 tonnes

- The Huang Shan belongs to a modern class of frigates of Chinese design and origin known as the Type-054A, and is one of the newest ships in attendance at Imdex Asia 2017.
- The Type-054A is expected to be the most numerous surface combatant in the Chinese Navy.
- The Huang Shan also incorporates a design that is built of radar absorbent material, with clean lines free of clutter, resulting in the least possible radar return.
- This class of frigate is built primarily for air defence, although it can perform anti-surface and anti-submarine warfare (ASW) missions.
