

What happened yesterday

1 8.18am

A train heading in the direction of Tuas Link station stalls at Joo Koon station.

2 8.19am

A second train stops behind the first faulty train.

3 8.20am

The second train moves forward unexpectedly, and collides with the first train.

NOTE: Artist's impression. Drawings not to scale.

• Total

29 injured

• National University Hospital:

Conveyed	Declined treatment
15	1

• Ng Teng Fong General Hospital:

Conveyed	Walked in
10	4

8.33am

The Singapore Civil Defence Force (SCDF) is alerted to the collision.

8.25am-10.31am

Transport operator SMRT updates its Twitter page to inform passengers of a train fault. It tells passengers to expect delays in their travel time between Queenstown, Jurong East and Boon Lay to Tuas Link. The Land Transport Authority (LTA) shares SMRT's updates.

11.11am

LTA and SMRT alert newsrooms that a train "came into contact" with another train at Joo Koon. More than 20 passengers and two SMRT staff had "light to moderate injuries," and had been sent to Ng Teng Fong General Hospital (NTFGH) and National University Hospital (NUH). They are investigating the incident.

11.18am

SMRT updates its Facebook page with the same statement it sent to newsrooms.

12.06pm

SCDF says that ambulances sent 25 injured persons to the hospitals, and the "majority sustained minor injuries".

1.58pm

SMRT says there is no train service between Boon Lay and Tuas Link stations.

2pm

SMRT says East-West Line train services in both directions between Boon Lay and Tuas Link will be suspended for about two hours from 2pm.

4.15pm

LTA and SMRT say that 28 people were hurt in the collision. Three people went to NTFGH on their own.

5.16pm

SMRT says train services between Boon Lay and Tuas Link resumed at 5.12pm, but will be running slower.

11.24pm

LTA and SMRT say that another passenger went to NTFGH at about 7.30pm and is being treated. The total number of people injured is now 29.