

Factory output on the rise

The manufacturing sector, which has been the Singapore economy's brightest spot this year, is on track for another robust showing in 2018.

Growth in September 2017 compared with September 2016 (% change)

- Electronics manufacturing has been a key growth driver, thanks largely to strong global demand for chips and a surge of new consumer products.
- Other segments – including precision engineering – have also performed well.

33.2

Electronics

15.4

Precision engineering

9.5

Chemicals

8

Biomedical manufacturing

4.3

General manufacturing

-10.8

Transport engineering

