

Ridership up, maintenance spending stagnant

Note: On-time performance measures the percentage of trains that reach their destination less than five minutes late. Exact data for maintenance spending after 2012 was not available, but it has not increased significantly.