

Virus and particle size comparison

The average size of a virus is 0.1 micron, or 25 times smaller than a PM2.5 particle. This is used to determine the filtration efficacy of various household materials.

