

Green Pulse Podcast

Seafood 'seaspiracy'?

The recent documentary Seaspiracy calling on people to stop eating seafood has generated widespread debate. Supporters say the film highlights the impact of industrial fishing on marine life, bringing public attention to an aspect of the trade that not many usually think about. But others have lambasted it for the inaccurate facts and figures used to support the arguments made. In this episode, Straits Times environment correspondent Audrey Tan and climate change editor David Fogarty speak to Professor Dean Jerry, an aquaculture expert from the Singapore campus of James Cook University, about the implications of seafood consumption and the role of aquaculture in feeding the world.

Find out more about
this episode by
scanning this QR code.

str.sg/JWaf

