

A future with Covid-19

Health Minister Ong Ye Kung shared likely scenarios in the coming months, as he outlined how people could live with a virus that is here for the long haul.

1 A person who suspects he has Covid-19 could get an MC from his doctor, who will tell him to isolate and test himself at home.

2 Someone else could get an SMS informing him of exposure to the virus, with instructions to also isolate at home and conduct self-tests.

3 Those who are working may let their employers know that they have been notified by MOH of their exposure to Covid-19, and be allowed to stay home without an MC.
